Introduction

“As a medium of outdoor communication, signs and posters will be used to aid in accomplishing Forest Service objectives prescribed for the administration, protection, management, and use of public lands in the National Forest System including lands designated for conducting research. Appropriate signs and posters will be used to promote the safety and convenience of Forest visitors and users, and to provide information about geographic and historical features, use of the National Forests and National Grasslands, management practices, and research activities.

“All signs and posters should be skillfully conceived, designed, manufactured, and erected for maximum usefulness at a reasonable cost. They should be displayed to ensure that they will be seen and clearly understood by the public.

“Sufficient signs should be installed to provide adequate information and guidance to persons who may be unfamiliar with the area, and to provide proper identification of National Forest System lands.”

The above is the objective as quoted from FSM 7160.2 for the use of signs and posters in the National Forest System. Anyone involved in this area of work should be familiar with this section of the Forest Service Manual. It includes specific directives relative to Forest Service policies for implementing the poster and sign program.

This catalog is prepared to provide you with a list of the current national standard posters and small metal signs that are available. It provides information for ordering posters — from Central Supply, small metal

Definitions

The definition for small metal signs is found in FSM 7160.51 and is quoted here for your information:

“Signs comprise all permanently installed and maintained public notices, directions, information, and instructions of a permanent nature. They also include small, light, metal signs which may be semipermanent, or posted for the duration of the project only. Small, light, metal signs include boundary markers and markers to identify administrative sites.”

Posters, as defined under FSM 7160.52, are as follows:

“Posters include all temporary notices, directions, information, or instructions ordinarily printed on paper or cardboard. They will include safety, campground rules, timber sale notices, fire rules, and fire prevention data for use administratively to direct, inform, guide, and caution.

“There are special posters used in information and education programs that are not included in references to posters in FSH 7109.11, Sign Handbook, nor are they within the purview of the Washington Office Sign and Poster Committee.”

Section II

Guides for the Use of Posters and Small Metal Signs

Posters are intended for temporary use in situations where a particular message is appropriate for a relatively brief period of time. That length of time may range from two weeks up to six months. Beyond this, poster durability is questionable unless the poster is given special treatment to protect it from moisture and ultraviolet fade. If a message is needed the year around, a permanent sign should be used.

Preplanning is very important in order to have your posters or signs on hand at the right time. Several different poster messages may be used on a particular mount throughout the year. An inventory of all poster mount locations, along with the related communicative situation, is essential. (See FSM 7161.3 -- Poster Plan.)

Posters usually fit into two broad categories of communication: (1) to motivate the individual to action and (2) to regulate the actions of the individual. Generally, posters designed to motivate have a more subtle approach than those used to regulate. Use the regulatory-type messages where management objectives require a strong course of action.

Posters or small metal signs should not be overused. Establish priorities for messages and select only those that are essential. In selecting essential messages, consider the informational requirements of the visitor and the agency managerial objectives.

Select locations where posters or small metal signs will not interfere with or compete with other signs for attention, particularly traffic control signs. Ideal poster locations are on public use areas where there are other activities of interest to the Forest users, such as those adjacent to sites located for toilets, water, and garbage in recreation areas; etc. Posters must not be located where attention is normally directed toward viewing unique natural attractions.

Locate posters where they will not create safety hazards. Mounts should be the break-away type if erected within the roadside recovery area. Posters that are to be read from a moving vehicle should not be located on curves where the driver's attention to the road is necessary. Poster messages should be sized so they can be easily understood when they are to be read from a moving vehicle. When poster messages are to be read from a parked car (such as bulletin boards at recreation entrance sites), time-use studies should be made to ensure that adequate and safe parking facilities are constructed.

Select poster locations that relate closely to the message; for example a "No Smoking" poster in a wet area has little value.

Select posters designed for specific purposes; for example, (1) type of travel (foot, horseback; or slow, medium, or fast vehicles), and (2) period of time and use (temporary-- usually nonwaterproofed; waterproofed, reflectorized, fluorescent, etc.).

Proposals for New and Revised Posters and Small Metal Signs

Select key locations for posters that require restrictions or closures. Mount only one poster at a single location (except for bulletin boards).

Develop selections of the full season poster requirements for specific locations and mounts. Sites that are appropriate for different types of messages, or on which bulletin boards are mounted should be planned to avoid:

- Clutter of too many messages
- A predominance of "Do Not" restrictions.

Create a balanced arrangement of messages by intermingling information of particular interest to the visitor, including management requirements and seasonal requirements.

Do not attach posters directly to trees except as a temporary expedient to meet emergency conditions.

Mount only rules and behavior guides concerning Government property directly to buildings.

When a poster becomes faded, defaced, damaged, or after the message has served its purpose, replace it.

Generally, small metal signs should be reinforced with wood backings to give them additional strength and are not intended to be viewed from a moving vehicle.

Situations change from time to time, which cause some of the posters to become obsolete or inappropriate. Design improvements are encouraged and should be channeled through the responsible staff units.

All new design proposals or improvements should be reviewed in the Washington Office for possible inclusion in this catalog.

The following are guidelines for proposals for new and revised posters or small metal signs:

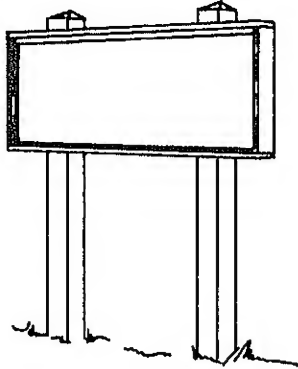

1. Proposal must have wide application; more than one Region.
2. Wording must be clear, brief, and appealing.
3. Proposal should include a discussion of planned use.
4. Sketches of a proposed poster (or metal sign) are desirable.
5. Sketches should be reviewed and possibly redesigned by experts in visual communication.
6. Once a poster or small metal sign is considered essential, the next task is to determine how to best communicate with the public effectively, yet in good taste. No poster or sign should be free from critical analysis.

Avoiding Visual Pollution

The possibility of visual pollution of posters can be avoided. However, to emphasize this concern, a constant review must be made of the poster's effectiveness. Posters and signs must command respect and be necessary to become effective. Posting beyond public and management requirements can cause unjustifiable visual pollution. To avoid visual pollution most effectively, emphasize total poster planning and take time to weed out unessential messages in all categories.

Section III

Poster Mounts

Figures 1 through 5 illustrate poster board mounts. Regions may develop their own designs for boards to display posters, but such designs must be in keeping with approved standards and used Region wide.

Mounts include the following types:

1. For individual posters requiring mounts on high and medium speed roads, such as the 54" x 44" and 42" x 34" sizes.
2. For individual posters mounted along low speed roads, such as the 44" x 16", 14" x 11", and 12" x 14" sizes. Certain 9" x 11" or 10" x 12" may be used along low speed roads such as in a campground.
3. For individual posters mounted along trails; i.e., 9" x 11", 10" x 12" and 14" x 11".
4. For grouping of posters, as on bulletin boards — 14" x 5½", 11" x 9", 10½" x 13½", and 14" x 11".

Functional Activity Posters

Posters Designed and Listed by Category. Posters are designed and listed in categories of primary interest. Often a poster will have multipurpose informational values. The following poster listing is compiled to represent the easiest catalog solution for field use.

Recreation Management. Posters with single messages are not usually designed for use on bulletin boards. Most single message posters are developed to meet a specific need and are used where a reminder to the Forest users is necessary. These posters should be posted in a location that is closely related to the message.

Posters in series P23-50 through P23-57; example, P23-57 – “Vehicle on Pavement Only,” are single-purpose posters designed for low speed recreation site roads.

The mounting support of a small single message poster is a post with a backing board. Mount these posters no higher than 36 inches above the ground.

Other poster messages have been designed specifically for bulletin boards; for example,

P23-18 – “Camper Please Observe the Following Rules,” etc. These posters may need to be changed during the season to emphasize rules or guides that are most applicable. Although single message posters are usually not designed for bulletin boards, they may be used for emphasis on bulletin boards if the verbiage relates to the area in general terms. For example, Poster P23-39 – “Quiet - 10PM - 6AM,” might be an essential poster in sites of critical vandalism conditions.

In selecting posters for bulletin boards, arrange for a full season of use using a rotation system. Note that the P23-64 design allows for changes in message content to correspond with changing situations. The inclusion of this poster on a bulletin board should reduce the extent of poster packaging and make adequate poster preplanning less difficult.

Timber Management. Most posters in this series are not intended for use along roads, but rather in places of timber operations (cutting boundaries, payment units, etc.). Similar to other functional activity posters, a few of these posters are designed for single message road mounts. These serve in a particular season; for example, P24-23 – “Cutting Christmas Trees Prohibited,” Poster P24-21a is intended for use along roads with traffic speeds of 40 to 50 m.p.h.; P24-22 and P24-23 are to be used along low speed roads.

Wildlife Management. Many posters required for wildlife management are available through State game and fish departments. In addition to these, there are posters listed and numbered with other series which will also function for wildlife management purposes. Examples are: P23-11 — "A Good Sportsman," P51-58 and P51-58a — "Hunters Register Here," P51-59 and P51-59a — "Sport," and P51-45 — "Green Forest, Good Fishing — Forest Fires Ruin Both," etc.

Fire Management. The largest sized posters (54" x 44") should be used only on high speed highways (55 m.p.h. and faster) and in situations where the scale of the country dwarfs their effect, and conversely, requires the need for this sign. The use of this size poster should be very limited and located sufficiently apart as to give no indication of repetition.

The medium sized posters (42" x 34") should be used on roads with speeds of 40 to 50 m.p.h. The use of this poster should also be limited to essential locations.

The poster next in size (44" x 16") is to be used on the bulk of low speed, low volume Forest development roads. To extend the use of fire poster mounts, sizes 42" x 34" and 44" x 16", through the off-fire season, other poster messages are available. In addition to those presently available, others are being designed to complete a larger variety of messages for off-fire season use.

The smaller posters, 11" x 9", 12" x 10", and 14" x 11", are not designed for use where there is vehicular traffic. Their major use is for pedestrian traffic and for trails, campgrounds and trail head, bulletin boards, roadside rests, etc. The 14" x 12" size generally has adequate visibility, small message content, and is suitable for low speed, low volume roads; example, P51-51 — "No Campfires," where such messages are needed.

Posters in series P51-11 through P51-17 are posters designed for use in fire camps. Poster P51-24a includes two arrows on one poster, which when folded, forms a one direction arrow that can be seen from most angles. This poster has reflectorized facing for night use. Information can be printed on the arrow (preferably with a grease pencil). This poster serves many different purposes.

Safety. Posters containing general safety messages are available through the National Safety Council. However, there are some posters with messages that apply to Forest Service safety requirements stocked in Central Supply. These include posters which warn of dangers to health particular to Forest Service activities.

Property. Posters P64-1 and P64-2 will be used on bulletin boards or displays within a building. They are not intended for outside use. Poster P64-3 will be posted only at locations where a pertinent problem exists. It should be removed when the situation is corrected.

Engineering. Posters P71-1 and P71-2 are to be used for temporary road closures only. If closure is for an extended period of time (over three months), a reflectorized sign should be used. These posters are intended for use in connection with the special servicing procedure or as an expedient to post a sign in emergency situations. In most cases, a barrier conforming to standards prescribed in the "Manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices" will be needed in addition to the poster.

Ordering Posters

Standard posters are available from Central Supply Section of the U.S. Department of Agriculture Office of Plant and Operations. You should request them on standard form AD-14 and order them direct. The address is:

Central Supply Branch
3702 Ironwood Place
Landover, Maryland 20785

Reflectorized posters are not stocked in Central Supply. They must be ordered special from Federal Prison Industries, Inc., in Atlanta, Georgia, and Lompoc, California.
